Welcome, in Tahitian

The story behind the image

The cover of this brochure features a photograph by Jules Roques, from Studio Gauguin: "We were about to arrive at the Rangiroa channel. I'd been warned that dolphins are often seen there. The show was on: there were lots of them that day! So I opened a hatch just above the bulb of the ship to photograph them, arms outstretched in the air. The difficulty was to get the shot without dropping the equipment into the water. It was the first time in my life that I had photographed dolphins, and it was an unforgettable moment."

Beyond the postcard

Mount Otemanu, motu Mahana, Cook's Bay, Ōpūnohu and Rōtūi bays, Rangiroa's "infinite lagoon", Takuvaine valley, Taiohae petroglyphs – there are so many names that make you dream. So many reminders of inspiring places, scattered all around and set among enchanting waters.

From Bora Bora to Moorea, from the Tuamotus to the Cook Islands via the Marquesas, in 2026, go beyond the picture postcard image and plunge right into the heart of French Polynesia and the islands of the South Pacific. Its 25 years in the region make Le Paul Gauguin the authentic way to discover every nook and cranny.

You'll find sites steeped in history and legend, atmospheric sacred places, seabeds teeming with life, craftsmanship of rare finesse, and a people who have made hospitality a veritable art of living. On board, your Polynesian hosts, the Gauguins and Gauguines, share this wonderful spirit and traditional customs with you.

Discover what the islands have to offer at each port of call through the many immersive activities available. Canoeing, snorkelling, cycling and walking all provide plenty of opportunities to discover lush valleys, tropical forests, dramatic mountains, isolated atolls, lagoons inhabited by sharks and rays, traditional arts, black pearl and vanilla cultivation, and local gastronomy.

A trip to Polynesia will see you return charmed and amazed, if not charged with the positive energy known as mana, so dear to its inhabitants. A state of mind and serenity that we invite you to embrace as you turn the pages of this brochure.

See you on board soon,

Hervé Gastinel

The spirit of Paul Gauguin CRUISES

Embark on a true immersion in the South Pacific and an unforgettable initiation into the rich traditions of Polynesia. In a relaxed and cosmopolitan atmosphere, different from other ships in the PONANT fleet, Le Paul Gauguin embodies the Polynesian spirit on voyages where relaxation and a sense of discovery are the order of the day.

5 reasons to sail aboard Le Paul Gauguin

1 Polynesian expert

In 1891, the painter Paul Gauguin settled in Tahiti in search of a "sky without winter". For more than 25 years, the ship named in his honour – designed to navigate the shallow waters of the South Pacific and its isolated islands – has taken guests on voyages of discovery to this faraway part of the world where time seems to stand still. Wild islands with dramatic volcanic peaks, deep valleys, lush jungles, precious lagoons and secluded coves, seabeds teeming with life and colour... There's so much to explore on a voyage with Le Paul Gauguin.

2 Unprecedented routes

All Le Paul Gauguin itineraries have been designed to offer you an authentic experience of Polynesia and the islands of the South Pacific – Tahiti, Moorea, Bora Bora, the Tuamotus, the Marquesas and the Cook Islands. Lasting from seven to 14 nights, our sailings offer you both an introduction to these enchanting archipelagos and time to get to know their different cultures and traditions. The many excursions and activities offered at every port of call, both on land and at sea, offer incredible opportunities to explore natural wonders and meet local communities.

3 A ship with the personal touch

Le Paul Gauguin has 165 staterooms and suites, each offering its own view of the incredible surroundings. To make sure you enjoy your trip with complete peace of mind, the ship has two crew members per three guests, one of the best ratios in the cruise industry. The service provided by our Polynesian hosts, the Gauguins and Gauguines, is professional and friendly and an integral part of the ship's warm, intimate atmosphere.

4 An all-inclusive experience

Taking advantage of an all-inclusive offer on board means everything is taken care of so you can enjoy your holiday to the full. Meals and snacks, a wide selection of drinks, room service, butler service for certain suites and staterooms, watersports equipment (masks and snorkels, stand-up paddleboards), entertainment and exclusive access to a private islet in French Polynesia are included in the price of your cruise. Every day, let us surprise you with gourmet international cuisine, inspired by local products and flavours, in the laid-back setting of our three elegant restaurants.

5 A pioneering commitment

Exchange, cooperation, mutual aid – this is the spirit underpinning Paul Gauguin Cruises' commitment to French Polynesia.

We do our utmost to develop more sustainable tourism, for the benefit of the communities that welcome our guests each season.

Our excursion programmes are developed directly with local, family-run structures.

In 2023, we joined forces with the Polynesian government to provide medical care in the most remote, isolated islands.

The medical teams on board Le Paul Gauguin will now be able to count on the support of Tahitian doctors who will travel to the islands free of charge on our ship.

During ports of call, local residents can have free consultations with the ship's doctors and benefit from access to some of the ship's medical equipment, such as X-ray and ultrasound machines.

Polynesian break

As we celebrate 25 years of sailing in the region, a portrait, landmarks and expert advice let you discover
Polynesia in a different way.

Michel Quioc, Polynesia under his skin

Nearly two decades after his first voyage to Polynesia, in 2019 the captain returned to these waters that hold so much emotion for him – and that he knows by heart. A love affair he willingly shares with the guests of Le Paul Gauguin.

Just like many of his fellow sailors who today navigate the most impressive ships on the planet, Michel Quioc grew up reading Treasure Island, the classic tale of a young boy who goes to sea in search of adventure (and buried treasure). A keen interest in life at sea was further fuelled by real-life accounts of the extraordinary feats achieved by legendary French solo sailor and writer Bernard Moitessier, who was famous for entering the 1968 Golden Globe Race and, despite being the likely winner, sailed on to Tahiti rather than returning to the start line in England.

Michel joined the renowned Merchant Navy School in Le Havre and his nautical career took off during his first crossings close to the family home, first between Brest and Ouessant, then between Roscoff and England. From his voyages in the Iroise Sea when he was just 20 years old, this sailor from Finistère remembers "the intensity and demands of navigating the Fromveur Passage and the Four Channel, with their hectic currents, huge tides, abundant rocks, occasional fog, and some formidable storms".

Ferry in the English Channel, giant container ship or supertanker in Asia, oceanographic research vessel in the Mediterranean and leisurely sails on the beautiful Bel Espoir in the Caribbean and the Azores were followed by coastal navigation in New Caledonia and Vanuatu. He enriches – and broadens – his CV in line with his personal life, opportunities and desires, until one of them stirs him like never before. Michel Quioc discovered Polynesia in the early 2000s, and remembers it "very well. It may sound very strange, but it's a place where I immediately felt I belonged."

Dropping anchor in Polynesia

Without realising it, the captain was writing the first lines of a story that he is still writing, 20 years after he first fell in love with this land of sharing and carefree living. It is a never-ending pleasure that he obviously links to "his" ship, Le Paul Gauguin, but also to the anthology of emotions he experiences on every voyage to these waters – and islands – at the end of the world: "the sailing is smooth, the scenery is like no other, and the welcome is incomparable. A bit like Ulysses with the siren song, there's something really special here, the charm and purity of the islands bewitch you...".

Which ports of call particularly thrill the captain? The mystery of the Bay of Virgins at Fatu Hiva and the perfection of the Taiohae caldera at Nuku Hiva, respectively the first and last islands in the Marquesas archipelago where Le Paul Gauguin cruises. "It is not unusual for some guests to confess to me that they have never seen anything so beautiful." A dream that Michel Quioc now lives without needing to open his childhood books.

VIDÉO
Le Paul Gauguin, the soul of the Polynesian islands.

“ While a sailor always feels the call of the open sea, it nevertheless takes courage to leave the comfort of piloting the Seine and join the PONANT adventure.

Michel did it! And he brings us his experience of the sea, but above all his sincerity, his professionalism and his interpersonal skills.

Aboard Le Paul Gauguin, he has returned to the ship and Polynesia of his early career, which he particularly cherishes, and I'm proud to have been the catalyst for this return to his real love. But Michel's priority is others, and his overwhelming desire is to bring happiness to his guests and crew.

Jean-Philippe Lemaire, the company's first captain and a key figure at PONANT

In awe of the mountains

With more than a hundred islands, the five archipelagos of Polynesia can also be explored by land. A journey within a journey that is just as astonishing in its diversity. You will experience this through four key ports of call where the lagoons are never far away.

The Society Islands

Turn your back on the Pacific and plunge deep into a land of peaks, as sharp as they are majestic. Clearly visible from the plain of Pira'e in Tahiti, the Diadème immediately attracts the eye. The Fautaua valley is a must for walkers, with a hike to the spellbinding Loti waterfall. On Bora Bora, it's hard to resist Mount Otemanu, the 727-metre-high "peak that sucks you in", right in the heart of the island. On a completely different note, a 20-minute walk will take you around motu Mahana, a small islet off the coast of Taha'a. Guests on Le Paul Gauguin who have opted for leisure can also enjoy the stunning panorama of the peaks from the beach.

Fakarava, Tuamotu Islands

Rarotonga, Cook Islands

Nuku Hiva, Marquesas Islands

ONE ISLAND, ONE STYLE

The Tuamotu Islands

Back to sea! And to the Tuamotus, where it's always crystal blue. Make way, then, for the planet's largest chain of coral atolls (78 in total, covering more than two million square kilometres) and their underwater paradises. This is where scuba divers go for dives that will live in the memory forever. If one had to pick a favourite spot in this Eden of lagoons? Perhaps Fakarava, one of the atolls classified as a biosphere reserve by UNESCO.

The Cook Islands

Another breathtaking coral reef, surrounded by an ocean that plunges to depths of between 2,000 and 3,000 metres. Underwater life is teeming with species that rival each other in beauty, but the wildlife that can be observed in the heart of the island is no less impressive. It is in the Cook Islands, for example, and more specifically on Rarotonga, that you can find the Kakerori – also known as the Rarotonga flycatcher, a bird recently saved from extinction thanks to a conservation programme.

The Marquesas Islands

And suddenly, like a mirage, the 1,276 metres of Mount Temetiu appear. The appearance of Hiva Oa – one of the 14 islands that make up the Marquesas – is an unmistakable sight on a voyage aboard Le Paul Gauguin. Steep mountains, towering peaks, sheer cliffs, dizzying waterfalls and deep, narrow valleys, just one surprise after another, from Hatihe'u to Hanavave via the Bay of Virgins. The youngest islands in French Polynesia, the Marquesas are home to a natural ecosystem that is unique in the world, with many exotic birds and, in terms of vascular flora, no fewer than 314 indigenous species, more than half of which are endemic. These wild and sparsely populated islands at the end of the world are also a choice destination for hikers, who can, for example, tackle the Vaipo waterfall on the island of Nuku Hiva, also famous for its Taipivai valley, a must-see for history buffs (see page 53).

Beyond the postcard

Polynesia may be famous for its breathtaking scenery, but it is so much more than simply a visual paradise. This region is a cultural melting pot of flavours, traditions and experiences to savour before, during and after your trip.

Devour the pages of Bernard Moitessier

"Intended for the most eloquent piece of French history, and to the one whose merit comes closest to it," the Jean-Walter Prize was awarded to famed navigator-writer Bernard Moitessier by the Académie française in 1972 for his book The Long Way detailing his experience in the first solo around-the-world yacht race. Nicknamed the "vagabond of the South Seas", Moitessier has achieved accolades record worthy of a lifetime of adventure. One of Le Paul Gauguin's captains, Michel Quioc, recommends Moitessier's books, in which Polynesia is featured, and in particular the atoll of Ahe, his former home.

Enjoy a vanilla mahi-mahi

With its broad forehead and prognathic jaw, the mahi-mahi, a dolphinfish that can grow up to two metres long and weigh around 50 kilograms, is a real treat for anglers and foodies alike. Accompanied by a vanilla sauce (local, of course!), the flavour of this dish is an unexpected delight. Other fresh seafood not to miss on the menu include marinated bonito or tuna fillets. Bon appétit!

3 Understand local culture through dance

Ori Tahiti Dancers highlight all the beauty, passion and heritage that traditional Tahitian dance are known for. Produced in 2023, this documentary is an opportunity to immerse yourself for almost an hour in the rich cultural customs that have been handed down for generations.

4 Rediscover paradise with a cinematic classic

(Re)immerse yourself in the beauty and romance of this fabled destination with the classic 1958 movie South Pacific. Based on the Rodgers and Hammerstein Broadway musical, the Academy Award-winning film – Best Sound, Best Music, Best Cinematography – navigates the complexities of love, duty and the pursuit of happiness during World War II in the South Pacific. The lush, breathtaking landscapes and heart-stirring melodies transport you to a world where love transcends boundaries and dreams sail on the winds of hope.

Popularised throughout the world by travellers at the beginning of the 20th century, notably through the paintings of Paul Gauguin, and raised as a symbol of the joie de vivre and warmth of the South Pacific archipelagos, the Tahitian pāreu, or "wraparound skirt", is an essential of the Polynesian wardrobe.

Local colour

Beach blanket, dress, loincloth... With a hint of ingenuity, a touch of fantasy, a few knots and folds, the pareo or sarong comes in a multitude of versions and accessories.

Originally made from tapa, a vegetable fabric made from banana leaves, coconut fibres or wild hibiscus bark, today's pareos are made from textiles as varied as cotton, linen, rayon and silk.

The pareo displays plant, exotic or traditional motifs and is as colourful as it is versatile. It is used at major cultural events, as a dance costume, but also in everyday life, at home and, of course, on the beach.

Every year, the inhabitants of French Polynesia dedicate an official day to the garment, during which everyone is invited to wear it, including at work.

The page is decorated with various teal-colored line drawings of tropical leaves, including palm fronds and broad-leafed plants, scattered around the central text.

Picture perfect

Every day, our guests post their best photos on social networks. Here's a selection of the shots they have taken in Polynesia. Welcome to paradise, through the inspired eyes of these amateur photographers!

Complement your trip

To help you explore the islands you visit,
we offer a wide range of excursions.
And, to complete your journey, our pre- and post-cruise stays extend the dream.

Activities, excursions: our inspirational ideas

A secret trail, an uninterrupted view of the horizon, an inlet invites undersea exploration, smells that precede delicious flavours: we offer you a wide range of optional excursions at every stopover. Here's a selection.

Bora Bora, Society Islands

Relaxing time at the Lagoonarium

Lightweight outrigger canoes whizz along to the Lagoonarium in Bora Bora and its open-air parks. Sharks, rays, yellow jacks, turtles and parrotfish are just some of the inhabitants of these pristine waters. Whether you're a beginner or an experienced snorkeller, you'll gradually move away from the beach and into shallow waters. Local instructors will guide you to ensure a respectful and careful approach to these species, which are varied and harmless.

€€ | 4 h

Bora Bora off-road adventure

Lovers of wide-open spaces and off-road adventure should head for the hills of Bora Bora for a multi-stage excursion along the island's quietest road, in a four-wheel-drive vehicle with a dedicated driver. The craggy terrain winds through the village of Vaitape in Pofai Bay as far as Pahonu Hill, where you will enjoy an uninterrupted view of Bora Bora's natural harbour. The lush Fa'anui Valley overlooks the spectacular bay of the same name: it's a favourite spot for keen photographers.

€€€ | 3 h 30

Huahine, Society Islands

Motu picnic

Who better than one of our guests to tell you about this excursion? "This all-day excursion was truly multi-faceted!" she told us. "We took our places in a pirogue to begin snorkelling among the fish. Then we were welcomed on a private islet with punch and cold drinks to enjoy by the water, along with ceviche prepared during a cookery workshop. Our Polynesian host also wove palm leaf crowns for us and showed us how to open a coconut. It was a wonderful shared experience."

€ € € | 6 h

Huahine Iti by e-bike

This e-bike experience will have you cycling 27 kilometres around the small island of Huahine. Your guide has created a varied programme combining tours of the archaeological remains of the ancient sacred site Marae Anini and of a traditional sarong painting workshop, followed by free time and several stops to admire the spectacular views. These few hours offer a wonderful way to get into the rhythm of the island – that of the life of its inhabitants and the regular whisper of the waves rolling in the distance.

€ € | 3 h 45

Fakarava, Tuamotu Islands

Half-day to Teahatea beach

Feel a sense of freedom from the breeze that blows across the atoll as you cross the Fakarava Biosphere Reserve, a UNESCO World Heritage Site. After traversing the Garuae channel, the largest in Polynesia, you come to Teahatea beach. The programme includes swimming in the lagoon, snorkelling, indulging in iced coconuts and other delicious refreshments. It's a moment suspended in time, definitely to be relished.

€€€ | 3h

Moorea, Society Islands

Guided ATV tour

Undertaking the ascent of the steep hillside of Moorea in a four-wheel drive vehicle seems to make time stand still, with the jagged peaks as your focal point. You will marvel at the spectacular Cook and Ōpūnohu bays and Mount Rōtūi; cross rivers and pineapple plantations in the hollow of a valley; take a break in a marae, an ancient temple in the middle of the countryside where you can reflect on the centres of Polynesian spiritual life; and revitalise yourself in the middle of the most abundant of gardens.

€€€€ | 3h

Rangiroa, Tuamotu Islands

Black pearl farm

This excursion introduces visitors to the farming of pearls – a highly prized crop that is synonymous with Polynesia. Learn how these beautiful gems are farmed, selected, sorted and cleaned, and watch the grafter at work as he skilfully exercises his trade: you'll see these delicate pearls in a different light.

€ | 1 h 30

Aitutaki, Cook Islands

Lagoon cruise with beach break

The deep blue lagoon of Aitutaki, considered one of the most beautiful in the world, is enhanced by the presence of volcanic rock and the island's atoll-like geography. Head for the motus, the small islands that surround the area, to explore their wonders above and below the waterline, or simply enjoy time to relax. With an introduction to local flavours, a lunch of grilled fish and fresh fruit will round off your exploration.

€ € € € | 5 h

Taha'a, Society islands

Catamaran sail

With its flat base, the catamaran skims effortlessly through shallow waters that shimmer in multiple shades of turquoise. Fill your lungs with the ocean breeze while you contemplate the sheer beauty of Taha'a. On board, the Tahitian hosts will delight in sharing their culture, then, once you reach the coral garden, Taha'a's most famous snorkelling spot, the fast-moving craft will pause so you can enjoy a refreshing dip.

€€€ | 3 h 30

Taha'a cultural tour

Known as 'the vanilla island', it's only natural that the discovery of Taha'a should begin through the prism of this black gold. Combined with a presentation, the plantation tour offers the perfect opportunity to get a better understanding of the challenges of this symbolic crop. A stop-off at the 'motu Pearl Village' is where the famous black pearl of Tahiti will reveal its secrets. History, legends and contemporary life on the island: no stone will be left unturned and curiosity is welcome!

€€ | 3 h 30

Price: € = less than € 50, €€ = from € 50 to 100, €€€ = from € 100 to 150, €€€€ = more than € 150.

Tours on board Le Paul Gauguin are sold in US dollars. The dollar/euro conversion is made according to the exchange rate above as of April 2024, and is likely to change. The final price of the excursion will be communicated to you in your travel book.

Omoa, Fatu Hiva Island, Marquesas Islands

Omoa petroglyphs walk

The remains of the dwelling or paepae of an ancient chief, with a tiki carved into the Marquesas' famous ke'etu stone; the crest of a ridge carved with images of men, magical tiki and ancient pirogues; the petroglyph of 'paoa', one of the biggest in the archipelago, which looks like a huge tuna fish cut into the rock... From one surprise to the next, walking along the Omoa Valley trails in the footsteps of past generations of Marquesans encourages curiosity and reflection.

€€ | 3 h

Taiohae, Nuku Hiva Island, Marquesas Islands

Taipivai Valley excursion

Made famous by the writer and former mariner Herman Melville, who deserted his ship and hid there, the Taipivai Valley is one of the Marquesas' richest archaeological sites. Melville spent three weeks there observing the locals' way of life, an experience that inspired his first novel Typee (1846). This off-road adventure in local vehicles ventures through farming villages and offers many contemplative pauses, so guests can note their own impressions and observations.
